

THE BEST DAY WALKS ON THE HAURAKI GULF ISLANDS

Sunday 3 November – Sunday 10 November 2024

7 delightful days exploring the best short walks on 7 idyllic islands

Leader: Phillip Donnell

The warm and sheltered waters of the Hauraki Gulf have been home to humans for up to a thousand years, providing a fertile fishing ground for early Māori and today forming the backdrop to New Zealand's biggest city.

While Hauraki itself means the "north wind", which used to bring raiding parties from that direction – the gulf now has another official Māori name: Tikapa Moana o Hauraki, a sea protected by a sacred rock or mauri placed by the navigator Tametekapua of the Arawa canoe on an islet at the entrance to the gulf.

The gulf contains more than 50 islands, from rocky islets barely above the high-tide mark to suburban Waiheke. Most are largely uninhabited; several are reserves and all fall within the Hauraki Gulf Marine Park, covering more than 1.2 million hectares of ocean.

On the weekends – and on any fine weekday – the inner gulf is abuzz with small boats: ferries, fishers, sailors, cruisers, explorers. Protected by the outstretching arm of the Coromandel Peninsula and its outlier Great Barrier, the Gulf's waters are host to schools of snapper, kahawai and fighting kingfish; a breeding ground for sharks; and home to bottlenose and common dolphins, their larger cousin the orca and the magnificent Bryde’s whale.

Many of the islands are home to rare and wonderful birds, too: sanctuaries such as Tiritiri Matangi, Motutapu, Motuihe and Rotoroa are playing an important role in bringing endangered species such as takahē, kiwi and tīeke (saddleback) back from the brink, while seabirds such as oystercatchers, gannets and terns enjoy the seafood buffet as much as the area’s human inhabitants.

DAY	POSSIBLE WALKS	OVERNIGHT
	Participants should gather in Auckland by Saturday evening 2 November . Accommodation is available (this is an additional cost)
Day 1 Sunday 3 November	Rangitoto Island (with possible Motutapu Island) (ferry from Auckland). Visible from around Auckland – sometimes looming large, then shrinking back to its regular size, as if caught out – Rangitoto is an icon of the city. The last, or should we say latest of the region’s volcanoes to erupt, a mere 800 years ago, the cone is quiet and cold now. Rangitoto’s also home to the world’s largest forest of pohutukawa, and the island also offers great hiking and kayaking. Motutapu (1500ha) was an island apart until Rangitoto decided to pop up out of the sea. Much older and very different geographically, Motutapu (meaning “sacred island”) was inhabited by Māori at the time of its neighbour erupted; human footprints have been found in ash layers there. Motutapu’s bush was cleared and its rolling hills farmed for more than a hundred years. However, now the forest and its birdlife are resurgent. Both Rangitoto and	Auckland Central

	Motutapu are now officially pest-free, and a trust is coordinating revegetation and the reintroduction of rare species such as takahe. Possible Walks: Lighthouse Walk: Wharf to McKenzie Bay (2h30m one way) Rangitoto Wharf to summit to Islington Bay (2h30m one way) Coastal Track from Rangitoto Wharf to Islington Bay Wharf (2h30m one way) Inland route from Rangitoto Wharf to Islington Bay Wharf (1h30m one way) Islington Bay Wharf to Home Bay (Motutapu Island) (1h45m one way) Islington Bay Road to Wreck Bay (1h one way)
Day 2 Monday 4 November	Waiheke Island (ferry from Auckland) The island is 19.3 km in length from west to east, varies in width from 0.64 to 9.65 km, and has a surface area of 92km<sup>2</sup>. The coastline is 133.5 km, including 40 km of beaches. The port of Matiatia at the western end is 17.7 km from Auckland.	Oneroa
Day 3 Tuesday 5 November	Waiheke has a resident population of 9,420 people (June 2023) with most living close to the western end. The settlements of Oneroa and Blackpool are the furthest west, followed by Palm Beach, Surfdale, and Ostend. Further east lies Onetangi. To the south of this on the opposing coast is the beautiful Whakanewha Regional Park and Ōmiha (also called 'Rocky Bay'). Much of the eastern half of the island is privately owned farmland and vineyards. Possible Walks: Matiatia-Church Bay-Oneroa (2h), Matiatia-Owhanake-Oneroa (2-3h), Oneroa-Blackpool (2h), Park Point (1h) Matietie Walk (55m), Stony Batter Tunnels and Opopo Bay (2h30m), Orapiu-Pearl Bay (2h), Waikoupou Bay 1h30m), Hekerua-Palm Beach (2h), Te Whau Loop (2h), Rocky Bay-Whakanewha (2h), Onetangi (1h), Cross Island Walkway (3h).	Auckland Central
Day 4 Wednesday 6 November	Rotoroa Island (ferry from Auckland) After a hundred years as a Salvation Army alcohol- and drug-rehabilitation centre, Rotoroa now offers a different kind of sanctuary. Managed by a trust, the island has been opened to the public as an arts, heritage and conservation park through the philanthropy of Neal	Auckland Central

	and Annette Plowman. Takahē, tīeke (saddlebacks) and kiwi are thriving on the island, which also retains remnants of its addiction-therapy days when it was nicknamed 'Alcatraz'. A stunning – and, yes, sobering – visitor and exhibition centre tells the island's story. Possible Walks: Southern Loop Track (1h15m), North Tower Loop Track (45m), Mai Mai Bay Track (10m), Cable Bay Track (30m).
Day 5 Thursday 7 November	Motuihe Island (ferry from Auckland) Very soon after arrival of the Europeans in the area, farming began in the 1840s. Groves of Norfolk pines and olive trees are remnants of this time. In 1872 the island was designated as a human quarantine station for smallpox victims. A quarantine station was built on the western section of the island in 1873. It was used in 1874 for scarlet fever arriving on an inbound ship, and operated for almost 50 years, slowly growing in size. During the First World War, the station was used as an internment camp whose most famous prisoner was Count Felix von Luckner and his crew of the commerce raider SMS Seeadler. Captured in September 1917, in December Luckner used a Christmas play as a ruse to organise an escape. Following the First World War, the island was again used as a quarantine station during the 1918 flu pandemic. With the outbreak of World War II, the buildings became a naval training base, HMNZS Tamaki, and a number of newer buildings were added. The base remained a navy training ground until 1963, when its functions were moved to the North Shore mainland. Possible Walks: Tieke Track (5km, 1.5 to 2.5 hrs), Eastern Beaches Track 5.5km, 1.5 to 2.5 hrs), Bald Knob Track (6.5km, 2-3 hrs), Headland Heritage Walk (1 km, 20 - 45 min)	Warkworth
Day 6 Friday 8 November	Kawau Island (ferry from Sandspit) The island is named after the Māori word for the shag (cormorant) bird. The island was bought by Sir George Grey, Governor of New Zealand, in 1862 as a private retreat. Grey extended the original copper mine manager's house (built 1845) to create the Mansion House, which still stands, and made the surrounding land into a botanical and zoological park, importing many plants and animals. The house changed hands	Whangaparoa

	several times after Grey, and decayed increasingly, but has been restored and furnished as it was in the Victorian era, It is now in public ownership in the Kawau Island Historic Reserve, administered by the New Zealand Department of Conservation. The reserve covers 10% of the Island, and includes the old copper mine, believed to be the site of New Zealand's first underground metalliferous mining venture (1844). The ruins of the mine's pumphouse are registered as a Category I heritage structure. The island is home to kiwi and two-thirds of the entire population of North Island weka. Possible Walks:  Mansion House Gardens/beach/viewpoint, Two House Bay Track (15 mins), Ladys Bay (15 mins), Momona Point and Pā, Mansion House to Coppermine Lookout (25 min one way), Mansion House to Lookout to Coppermine (1 hour one way), Coppermine round trip via Dispute Cove Coastal loop – low tide only, Mansion House – Coach Road – Dispute Cove Road – Dispute Cove – coast – Coppermine (around 1 hour one way, Schoolhouse Bay Road-Schoolhouse Bay – Lookout (35 min one way).
Day 7  Saturday  9 November	Tiritiri Matangi Island (ferry from Gulf Harbour)  One of New Zealand’s conservation success stories, Tiri, as it’s usually known, is another open sanctuary. Its Māori name means ‘buffeted by the winds’, and early Polynesian settlers imagined it to be afloat on a huge fishing net.  Tiri’s lighthouse, built in 1864, once housed the brightest light in the southern hemisphere, its beam visibly sweeping across bedroom walls of houses on the North Shore every 15 seconds from dusk till dawn.  It is still a vital navigational aid, but today the lighthouse-keepers and farmers have gone, replaced by regenerating native bush, which is home to species such as takahē, kōkako, tīeke (saddleback) and hihi (stitchbird). Possible Walks:  Wattle Track (40m), Hobbs Beach (10m), Kawerau Track (40m), Northeast Bay and East Coast (2h), Ridge Road (25m), Full Loop Track (3h). Farewell celebration dinner	Auckland  Central

Day 8 Sunday 10 November	Trip concludes after breakfast. Participants can be dropped off at the airport (additional cost) or take the Skybus.
